ENTRUSTED GIFTS, WHOLEHEARTED WORK

CCC
NAT

Dr. David Fincher ('93)
president@ccb.edu

As I begin my twenty-fourth year of service here in July, I'm more mindful than ever of the blessings God has placed upon Central Christian College of the Bible. Our work over the past two years has been driven by a process that resulted in a 2018-2023 Institutional Plan. You can read more about some of the priorities that have been agreed upon and are being implemented. This issue of theTORCH focuses on some of the exciting initiatives to help us accomplish our mission and vision.

The act of creating and implementing an institutional plan expresses at least two biblical truths we must never forget. They are true of individual lives, local congregations, and any institution serving the Lord's kingdom. They are true of me and they are also true of you.

The first truth is that God has provided entrusted gifts. Jesus says in Luke 12:48, "From everyone who has been given much, much will be required; and from the one who has been entrusted with much, even more will be expected." We often choose to focus on what we have not been given and ignore the gifts that have been entrusted to us. Whether the gifts are financial or facilities, people or programs, relationships or remembrances, God has trusted us enough to make us caretakers of those gifts. And He is expecting "much" and "more" to come from them.

If God has provided entrusted gifts and He expects much more to result from those gifts, then the next truth follows closely: God rewards wholehearted work. Paul writes in Colossians 3:22-23, "Work wholeheartedly, fearing the Lord. Whatever you do, do it from the heart, as something done for the Lord and not for people." The easiest way to interpret that passage is that we want our work to please the Lord, not people. And it is true that God is the ultimate judge and His approval matters most.

But if you consider those words further, it is also clear that the Lord rewards our heartfelt work. We have a healthy fear of God because we know His power is greater than we can imagine. So when we work wholeheartedly, fearing the Lord, we trust His power will work beyond our limited capacity. He will help us accomplish the very "more" that He is expecting. The reward for our wholehearted work, in response to His entrusted gifts, is that God empowers the much He requires.

Where does that leave you and me? Each of us has been entrusted with gifts, which God expects to turn into more. We use those gifts, in awe of His great power, and He turns our heartfelt effort into His preferred outcome. As you read about our efforts to build upon God's entrusted gifts with our heartfelt work, consider how God might want you to do the same in your life. You may find that the "much more" He expects from you can become reality in ways that you never would have imagined.

CCCB PREACHING STUDENT NATIONALLY RECOGNIZED

Along with a few other Christian church/church of Christ colleges, CCCB sponsors the Next Gen Preacher Search each year for high school juniors and seniors and college students ages 16-22 (www.nextgenpreachersearch.com). The Next Gen Preacher Search is a unique outreach to young Christian students across the country who have an interest in preaching and teaching.

This year, Grant Roth, a senior CCCB student from Carthage, Illinois, was a participant. He submitted a video for the competition in October 2018, and was selected to attend the February conference at Pepperdine University in Malibu, California. Grant described the process he and the other participants followed:

Prior to attending the conference, we all wrote new messages centered around a specific text assigned to us. Then, the coaches offered insight and critique concerning our presentations. After fine-tuning the delivery of our messages, we were filmed presenting them one final time. The videos were then reviewed by a larger panel of coaches, who select 4 students to represent the conference as Next Gen ambassadors at various events and venues across the nation for the next year.

In March of 2019, I was informed that I had been selected as an ambassador. Since then, I've had the opportunity to deliver a message at the Pepperdine Bible Lectures. As ambassadors, we are scheduled to speak at a conference at Lipscomb University in June. Other speaking arrangements throughout the year may lead us to Portland, Oregon; Louisville, Kentucky; and Gatlinburg, Tennessee.

My favorite part of the experience was learning from a diverse group of communicators. Several great preachers who are closely associated with Central have helped me to become a more faithful and effective handler of God's word. The Next Gen Preacher Search has expanded the pool of preachers from whom I learned and allowed me to make connections with people I respect greatly in homiletic circles. I'm so grateful for God's grace and the way that he gives us each a passion and a purpose.

I'm thankful for Central graduates who encouraged me to pursue the passions God has laid on my heart, especially Mark Nichols and Matthew Churchill. I want to assure anyone reading this that your investments in young people aren't going to waste. Your wisdom and guidance can change the course of our lives.

We congratulate Grant for this outstanding honor and for representing our preaching program during the process. He preaches on weekends at Waverly Christian Church in Waverly, Missouri. He is pictured on the cover while speaking at Timber Lake Christian Church in Moberly, Missouri, where he is completing his summer internship.

2018-23 INSTITUTIONAL PLAN

During 2018, the Institutional Planning Task Force completed its work of reaffirming our mission and vision, clarifying our core values, and imagining a “preferred future” approach to define success in the next five years. The result was four strategic themes with initiatives to implement. In the coming issues of theTORCH, we will describe the strategic themes and initiatives in more detail.

Vision Statement: “Dedicated Disciples who Know God’s Word and Serve His Kingdom.”

Our vision is seen most clearly when students and graduates accomplish these outcomes as part of their educational experience:

1. Dedicated Disciples

- Demonstrate Christlike behavior
- Develop mature spirituality
- Participate in Christian community
- Pursue academic success

2. Know God’s Word

- Trust Biblical authority and truth
- Embrace New Testament Christianity
- Continue to learn and teach others

3. Serve His Kingdom

- Participate in servant-leader activities
- Understand Christian church opportunities
- Discover appropriate career positions
- Emulate successful graduates
- Support Great Commission work

Mission Statement:
Central Christian College of the Bible exists to develop servant-leaders for the church.

STRATEGIC PLAN OVERVIEW

Mission Statement:
 The Christian college of the Bible exists to develop servant-leaders for the church.

Theme 1: Attractive Programs

We will promote learning that equips more servant-leaders for the church. This includes relevant ministry programs and dual-enrollment degrees for students to serve the church in vocational, bi-vocational, and voluntary roles. Students will develop a Biblical worldview and relevant ministry skills to serve God’s kingdom.

Theme 2: Formative Experiences

We will create conditions that advance dedicated kingdom service. This includes connecting our campus community with positive relationships, preparing students for employment opportunities, and clearly communicating with constituents while giving opportunities for feedback.

Theme 3: Productive Partners

We will expand our reach through relationships with compatible organizations. This includes training events, service-learning locations, and professional development to serve the needs of churches (our primary customers), students (our immediate customers), and alumni (our long-term customers).

Theme 4: Supportive Resources

We will broaden the resources required to empower institutional success. This includes growing our enrollment through recruiting and retention improvements and addressing financial concerns by exploring a stewardship campaign and reducing operational expenses and long-term debt.

As we implement this plan, we are “counting on God” to direct us into the actions and decisions that will please Him and empower our work.

ENROLLMENT MANAGEMENT TEAM

SUPPLY PREACHERS HELP CHURCHES IN NEED

What do churches do when their minister is sick or on vacation and no one in the church can fill the pulpit? Many churches in Missouri, southern Iowa, and western Illinois call Central Christian College of the Bible to come fill their pulpit.

In the last five years, we have filled the pulpits of 117 churches using 154 different preachers more than 1500 times. (And this doesn't include ongoing weekend ministries or interim ministries.) Some of the churches just need an occasional fill-in preacher. Other churches requested a fill-in preacher while doing a minister search. Still others can't afford their own preacher but still meet each week. When these churches call, we are able to send students, professors, alumni, and retired preachers to fill the open pulpits.

The churches we help are not just Christian churches, either. Our preachers have filled pulpits in various denominations and even at community events where they wanted a service but didn't have anyone to ask. "My goal is to have every pulpit filled each Sunday, but unfortunately that isn't always possible," commented Sherry Wallis, who coordinates the supply preachers. As one former supply preacher said, "This program is a win-win-win for churches, the college, and the students."

CHURCHES WIN

"Gifford Christian Church has been blessed with student supply preachers since the 1980s. Our small church has asked CCCB to help us keep the doors open and spread the gospel for a long time. We believe this has been an excellent opportunity for your students to practice how to speak, organize, minister & prepare to be a Christian pastor in a quiet little town. The students come from many different backgrounds and we accept them all in a Christian way. We delight in watching the students mature, grow, and settling into adult life during the time they are with us. We keep in contact after they leave. We are so appreciative of the college's cooperation in this matter!"

CENTRAL WINS

How does this program benefit the college? The supply preaching program allows our male students and staff to be the servant-leaders our churches look to when they have a need. There is no financial gain to the college, because payment goes to the preachers. Some of the churches support the college, but not all of them. The college was created to train church leaders and strengthen local churches. This program does both.

Jason Poznich, Professor of Preaching, commented on the training of preaching students: "We train preaching students using three environments: the home, the local church, and the classroom. We know there are some teachings students can't learn in the classroom, so I invite them to my home to discuss preaching and leadership. The best way to learn preaching is to preach, so many students are putting their learning to use in the local church. But the classroom is where the bulk of our preaching training will take place. With a new, state-of-the-art preaching center students will receive the best in-class training and practice possible to prepare them for a lifetime of preaching God's Word to God's people."

The state-of-the-art preaching center is being built this summer as a result of the Proclaim Project. The Proclaim Project focuses on three vital improvements for the preaching program:

- A converted classroom, equipped with technology and furnishings to function like a modern church facility.
- An expanded online preaching curriculum, bringing together campus students with distance education students.
- A funded scholarship to encourage those who are already preaching to become students in the preaching program.

The ribbon cutting for the Preaching Center will take place at 11:30 during Heritage Day on Friday, August 30. It is being built with designated gifts from supporters, churches, and charitable foundations.

STUDENTS WIN

Student preachers are encouraged to have a few sermons ready for any time there is a need. They often refer to those sermons as a "$1000 sermon" because they can preach the same sermon at several different churches. If the student preachers pass the application and interview process to supply preach, the churches pay them directly to come and fill the pulpit.

Here are a few comments from current and past supply preachers.

"Supply preaching helped me become a better communicator. I learned to understand different audiences."

"Supply preaching led me to my first weekend ministry with a church I filled in for a few times. They asked me to become their minister when I was 19, and I did."

"I like to think that I helped some of the smaller churches that couldn't afford a full time, or even a part time minister, by preaching and teaching God's Word to a flock that needed shepherding like other churches. It also provided me with a little extra income and the experiences I needed."

Whenever our students participate in the supply preaching program, they learn confidence and skills that carry on into their future ministries as well. Even the ministers who get a break from their weekly responsibilities see the benefits to the church, the college, and the students.

"I appreciate Central's 'Pulpit Supply' ministry. When I am to be away, it is so easy to contact the College and make arrangements for a speaker. It is much more than a convenience. It provides our congregation a connection with Central. We are always blessed by the professors or students the college sends our way. I could go on and on about wonderful experiences we've had during my time here. Our church family always enjoys reunions with professors from days gone by. I always enjoy the positive comments I receive about student ministers when I return home. I encourage our folks to especially embrace and express their delight in young men who are giving thought to pulpit ministry."

Jack Sumption, Minister (1st Christian Church, Memphis, Missouri)

If your church needs a supply preacher, even if you aren't near Moberly, please call 660-372-2512 or email sherrywallis@cccb.edu. We will be happy to try to connect you with a speaker that can meet your needs.

ONLINE DEGREES EQUIP STUDENTS FROM ACROSS THE COUNTRY

One way CCCB fulfills its mission of developing servant-leaders for the church is to offer online degrees that equip students from across the country for greater service in the church. This is illustrated in stories of two graduates from the Class of 2019.

John Teal graduated in May at 61 years of age. He attended Bible college earlier in life, but never completed a degree. While working in Southern California, John decided to complete his bachelor's degree and found our online program was a practical, affordable choice. John said that Central was very generous in accepting his previous college credit, enabling him to complete his degree in a timely manner. In addition, John wanted a doctrinally conservative college associated with the Christian churches and found that Central was a great fit for him.

Nathaniel Littler    Dr. Jamie Franke    John Teal

John said that his education at Central helped equip him for ministry in two ways. First, his classes helped him grow academically and become more mature in understanding the Scriptures. He had studied the Bible for many years, but his formal studies provided a framework to help develop his mind further. Second, his classes helped him achieve greater clarity about the work God would have him do. John began a ministry called Common Grounds (www.cgunity.com) to promote and pray for unity of believers within the Restoration Movement. His education at Central better equipped him for this ministry.

Nathaniel Littler was 24 years old when he graduated as Valedictorian of the Class of 2019. He is from Ohio and earned his entire bachelor's degree online at Central. After completing high school, Nathaniel was encouraged by his church to attend a college associated with the Restoration Movement, and he learned about Central. Nathaniel chose to work in an online program because he wanted to stay in his home area and make a difference in the kingdom of God. He found that his courses at Central were very applicable in the various ministry roles he has filled in the local church. Nathaniel emphasized that even within an online program, he could apply the material he learned in class to his personal ministry. In addition, Nathaniel found that his online education at Central challenged him to a deeper relationship with Christ and challenged him to further the kingdom of God.

John and Nathaniel are just two examples of students who come from different life stages, locations, and backgrounds. Yet they found that online education could challenge them academically and equip them for ministry in the kingdom of God. We look forward to seeing how God will use these servant-leaders in His church.

To ask Dr. Jamie Franke about online education, you can call or text 573-542-0555 or email online@cccb.edu. He can help you take the next step to an online degree.

SERVING AT A DEAF CHURCH

Rosie Borgaila (Honey Creek, Iowa)
Junior Student

Many Bible college students have grown up in a Christian home, going to church every Sunday, participating in Bible studies and camps. My beginning is similar to that but with one significant difference: I grew up going to a Deaf church. The first reaction when I tell people this is usually a lot of questions: “What is a Deaf church?” “How does a Deaf church run?” and “How do they worship, do they sing songs?”

These questions are answered by knowing Deaf culture. Deaf church is exactly what it sounds like: a church with services all done in ASL (American Sign Language). If there are hearing people attending the church, we will have an interpreter voice the services so the Deaf people still have it in their language but the hearing people can understand as well.

The order of service also works a bit different from other churches. A hearing church might start out with a few songs, then go into communion and offering, sing a song or two for those, then have announcements and the message, finally closing in a departure song. (Lots and lots of singing!)

In a Deaf church we don't have many songs, because it's hard to enjoy music when you can't hear it. We usually start services with prayer, asking God to move and be prevalent in the message. Then we greet visitors, followed by prayer time. This happens with everyone gathering around the room in a circle and sharing their praises and prayer requests with God. This promotes community and opportunity for God to be present since we are all praying 'aloud' for everyone to hear. After that we'll have a time where everyone in the church greets every person. This usually lasts longer than regular greeting times since Deaf people don't just shake hands. They ask questions and have a conversation that they might pick up later on after the service.

In the middle of the service we have a sermon. All of this is in ASL, though we sometimes use videos with words on it, or the ASL translation of the Bible by Deaf Missions. Having the church service in the Deaf person's language helps them get the full meaning and not a translation. Finally we have communion, which will sometimes be in groups to further promote community.

Deaf church has helped me understand there is not one set way to do things. We must adapt the message to different groups. This doesn't change the meaning of the gospel but how we say it and how we get the word out there.
